Now, to the extent that Dr. Shamos can offer evidence focused only on those claims and why they anticipate it, he's not bound by the evidence offered at the time of the second supplemental. He can offer, just like Dr. Weaver can offer, additional evidence directed to the same proposition, but that

What he did is, he went out and he concocted a whole new game, and he's not going to be allowed to testify to it, and he can't now go back and find all these references that he constitutes -- that you all say on your side, Lawson, is new evidence in support of the old contention. He's bound to those things that were in his report on which he relied to support the anticipations identified in the 14 claims.

I hope that everybody is clear on that, and in that way, Lawson and ePlus are going to be treated the same. But I don't believe the big difference is that Shamos didn't confine himself to the original contentions as did Weaver when he confined himself to the original infringement contentions and then offered more evidence than, in fact, was referred to earlier.

That's permissible for him, and it would be for Dr. Shamos had he done that. I don't see that he did it, but if you can show he did it, he did it, but let me tell when you come to trial, when you have him on the witness stand, you better have something to hand up to me to show me exactly how and where and when it -- what he's testifying to relates back to those original claims because he has, I've been able to tell from what I've been given, a propensity to roam and wander, and you better get him back on the reservation, because if he roams and wanders and I have to tell him more than once, he will be roaming and wandering out the back door.

And the same is true for Dr. Weaver. They're not going to take over the courtroom and do what they want to do. It's going to be done according to the rules.

The same is true for these obviousness combinations, 41 brand new ones. They weren't disclosed. Now, if he identified Gateway references originally that were other than the 2000/MRO manual, he can testify about that. If he didn't, he can't.

The next issue is whether this evidence of Shamos's that you're fighting over is relevant to the issue of damages. It is said that it's relevant to the issue of non-infringing alternative. I don't believe that that's been established.

It is true that the original orders on this point that we were dealing with dealt with invalidity contentions, but you can't get in all these extrinsic information that really relate to points of invalidity under the guise of something else. In other words, you can't dress them up in another dress and send them out into the world. That would be like -- would be like what Jefferson Davis did to lead the confederacy, dressed up like his wife in a dress and headed out. We can't have that.

I don't see how any of this evidence bears on the damages issue, nor do I see how the evidence that 6.5 -- six and 5V systems and earlier are substantially the same as the 8.0.3 systems that are accused has any probative value as to the willfulness issue, and to the extent that it has value on that issue, i.e., to the extent it's relevant on that issue, the presentation of that evidence would offend Rule 403 because it would cause delay, confusion, and make side trials out of a very difficult case already, and the jury, I expect, I anticipate would be hopelessly confused.

With the help of a mind substantially better than my own, for sometime I have been trying to understand what's been going on in this area, and if I can get confused by it, I have every confidence that a jury can. I have to make sure what I'm doing every time that I deal with this issue just to avoid confusion.

I don't think it's pertinent to lack of specific intent to induce infringement either or to discredit ePlus's infringement and damages contention for the same reason. To the extent it might be relevant, it's a 403 analysis, and the use of the pre-2002 systems don't do anything but provide confusion, delay.

Also, to the extent that Shamos is proffered to 188

1 testify to something on infringement, he already testified that 07:04:27

2 he didn't study the information on it for infringement 07:04:31

3 07:04:36 purposes. He did it for invalidity purposes, that is the

4 information we're talking about, and so his opinions on that 07:04:41

07:04:48 5 point that are repeated in the infringement issue from the

6 invalidity issue are not either relevant, nor do they fit --07:04:51

7 nor do they satisfy the fit part of Daubert. 07:05:00

> All right, I think that takes care of all the issues in that motion. Now we have defendant's motion number five. Who is going to do that?

07:05:51 11 MS. STOLL-DeBELL: I am, Your Honor. Just gathering 07:05:55 12 my stuff.

07:05:58 13 THE COURT: You know what? It might be the best 07:06:00 14 thing to do is let Mr. Robertson go first and explain just 07:06:05 15 exactly who is testifying to what so that I get that fixed in 07:06:09 16 my mind. That's this motion, isn't it? Do we have the right 07:06:12 17 one, limit to one expert on infringement and one on invalidity?

07:06:17 18 MS. STOLL-DeBELL: Yes, that's right. I can tell you

07:06:32 23 MS. STOLL-DeBELL: We're looking at slide number 38.

            but at least it is irrelevant as to the method -- I mean as to the apparatus even in the acknowledgment of the defendant, and 09:06:08

09:06:13
       3
            it is -- it is not cumulative evidence, it being the only

09:06:19

            arise from the missteps that the woman made can be cured by

09:06:43

                      That leaves me with a few things to do; is that we're going to go. You all have a time to talk with Judge say -- I wasn't saying this for settlement purposes. I genuinely believe that your damages case takes a hit for the

              here you have liability problems, and you might make sure you
